Bullzi Security Inc. Rated “Speculative Buy” by Beacon Research

Lake Mary, Florida, July 5, 2007 – Bullzi Security Inc. (BLLZ.pk), a leading converged security provider is rated by Beacon Research as a Speculative Buy and given a price target based on a five times Price/Sales multiple of 2008 Projected Revenue.

Thomas Welch, founder and CEO of Bullzi Security says, "We're pleased at the rating by Beacon Research – we feel that our current multiple of 3.6 is low. We have many new clients and a number of recent brand name client wins under our belt. This coupled with the fact that the eLearning security market is exploding makes us confident that we will beat all revenue projections."

The Beacon Research study, which is available at www.beaconequityresearch.com, claims that experts are predicting that the Security Industry is expected grow 10.8 per cent annually through 2008. The Beacon report states, "In an era of extreme technological sophistication, the threat can arise from almost any front – internal sources, hackers, organized crime or even terrorists. To preempt such threats, the Department of Homeland Security has budgeted $22 billion over the next five years to guard the nation's infrastructure against attacks and improve cyber security."

With data and Identify theft on the rise, Beacon states that Bullzi Security is well poised to lead the market with their strong Management team, multiple product strategies including the WISE eLearning solution as well as their diversified client and partner base.

The report also examines the competitive landscape in the security industry. CA, Inc (formerly Computer Associates (CA), Check Point Software Technologies (CHKP), Entrust, Inc. (ENTU), SAI Global (SALAX) and Symantec Corporation (SYMC) are all examined in comparison to Bullzi Security and their offerings.
